AON's Technology Corner Site

Empower Results® Low productivity and a low digitization rate have sparked an influx of new technology being developed, which has the potential to make a profound impact on the risks involved on construction projects and within asset management such as safety risk and design risk. Aon understands that this trend may be of interest to our clients and has created the Technology Corner to profile different construction technology and asset management companies. Each profile gives an overview of the technology, addresses its risk treatment potential, and identifies what insurance policies its implementation could impact. Our goal is multi-faceted to raise awareness about leading construction and asset management technologies that could help reduce risk on site for the purposes of educating our clients and the insurance markets. GASKETED SEWER PIPE SDR 35/26

With a specially designed Double Seal Locked-In (ESLI) gasket, this is an extremely durable sewer pipe with a leak-proof joint. This sewer pipe weighs a fraction of traditional pipe products and can service gravity storm and sanitary lines, gravity industrial lines and private drain connections.

FEATURES & BENEFITS:

- Corrosion-resistant PVC material resists root penetration and damage associated with field handling.
- Cost-efficient, lightweight pipe easily cut in-field that requires no heavy equipment for in-trench assembly.

Standards: Certified for CSA B182.2, ASTM D3034, F679, EN1324-130/EN1324-135
